Cambridge English

Recognition in the UK

- All UK universities with a large number of international students (including all Russell Group universities) accept Cambridge English: Advanced (CAE) Proficiency (CPE).
- UCAS allows students applying to UK universities to gain UCAS Tariff points by achieving certain grades in Advanced and Proficiency.

Students invest a substantial amount of time and effort preparing for CAE. This improves their language proficiency and leads to broad, detailed understanding of English, giving them a strong foundation to manage the tasks they face during their university studies.

I chose to take Cambridge English: Advanced (CAE) because I knew the university where I planned to apply accepted this exam as a proof of English proficiency. Thanks to this exam, I was able to prove to the University that I have the required English level to study there. This exam gave me the confidence to study in an English speaking country.
